

I want to create structures that are simplistic but complex like Schindler's that can also be made on a budget. I also would like to create so interesting landscapes with nature and incorporate that into the structures and bring in elements from the outside into the structures like the little things in nature that no one really notices like the patterns in leaves or bark and tie that into the design of the structure either on the inside or the outside. I want to create interesting structures that fits in with the other styles around it but also stands out at the same time. I am one of those people who likes to have things mapped out for me and have things organized so I was drawn to the manifesto I picked because of the structure it had and the way everything was laid out specifying for each topic.
